

Case 10 – Oesophagus, Easy

Diagnosis – Tertiary contractions

Tertiary contractions are a very common finding and are non-specific although most often secondary to gastro-oesophageal reflux disease. If severe they may prompt referral for oesophageal manometry to further characterise the nature of the oesophageal dysmotility.